SHARED SCRIPT (SAME FOR ALL HOOKS)

TIME	VOICEOVER	ON-SCREEN
0:05	Let's say your time is worth a hundred dollars an hour. This week, two founders each get twenty leads.	Split screen: PERSON A on the left, PERSON B on the right. Text: SAME 20 LEADS.
0:12	Person A follows up by hand. Call. Text. Chase. Chase again.	Phone notifications, missed calls, calendar chaos. Text: PERSON A: BY HAND
0:20	Say it's fifteen minutes a lead. Twenty leads is five hours. Five hours is five hundred dollars. Every week.	The maths builds line by line. Text: 20 LEADS x 15 MIN = 5 HRS, then 5 HRS x $100 = $500 / WEEK
0:28	Over a year, that's two hundred and sixty hours. Twenty-six thousand dollars of your time, spent on follow-up.	Number counts up. Text: 260 HRS / YEAR, then $26,000
0:35	Person B gets the same twenty leads. But the reply goes out in seconds. The reminders go out on their own. He only shows up for people who booked.	Replies and reminders pop up on their own, calendar fills. Text: PERSON B: SYSTEM
0:46	Same week. Same leads. Same hours. One spent his chasing. The other spent his closing.	Both clocks side by side, same 5 hours: A labelled CHASING, B labelled CLOSING.
0:53	Here's what most founders miss. If your hour is worth a hundred dollars, every hour a system could do is costing you money.	Wajahat to camera, slower. No b-roll.
1:01	Not saving it. Costing it.	Silence either side. Text: NOT SAVING. COSTING.
1:04	You can hire someone to chase leads. Or build it once, so nobody has to chase at all.	Wajahat to camera, sincere. Underplay the word build.
